Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1400 on Thursday 04 Feb 2021

UK Outlook for Tuesday 9 Feb 2021 to Thursday 18 Feb 2021:
A cold start to the period with significant wind-chill, especially in eastern areas. Snow showers are likely across eastern Scotland, England, and perhaps eastern Northern Ireland, whilst plenty of bright sunny weather is likely further west. There is a small chance of a period of heavy snowfall across parts of southern England and Wales, most likely on Tuesday. As the period progresses, remaining cold or very cold with brisk winds. The best of any sunshine will be in the west. Snow showers and attendant wintry hazards continuing to affect eastern UK at times, especially at first, whilst the risk of organised rain and snow pushing into the south-west and across southern UK will slowly increase.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.